Question 2

Question:

You are tasked with designing a promotional poster for a local art gallery using Adobe Illustrator. You have created several design elements, including shapes, text, and images. Analyze the effectiveness of your layout and color choices based on the following criteria: 1. Hierarchy: Explain how you have established visual hierarchy in your design. What elements did you prioritize, and why?

2. Color Scheme: Discuss the color palette you selected. How do the colors interact with each other, and what emotions or messages do they convey about the art gallery?

3. Balance and Alignment: Evaluate the balance and alignment of the elements in your design. Are there areas that feel crowded or unbalanced? How did you address these issues?

Scoring Criteria:

Comprehensiveness (1 point): Addresses all three criteria thoroughly.

Clarity (2 points): Ideas are expressed clearly and logically.

Depth of Analysis (2 points): Provides insights that reflect a deep understanding of design principles.

Response: First, to establish visual hierarchy, I made the gallery's name the most prominent element by placing it at the top of the poster in a large, bold font. This ensures that it's the first thing people notice, creating a strong focal point. Just below, I placed the event date, slightly smaller but still noticeable. The gallery's location and website are at the bottom in smaller text, as they are secondary in importance but still necessary. For the color scheme, I chose earth tones these colors create a sophisticated and welcoming atmosphere. The dark tinted background allows the text and images to stand out clearly without clashing. When considering balance and alignment, I imagine using a symmetrical layout to keep the design organized. The main text is centered, and the images are evenly spaced at the bottom, giving the poster a clean and structured appearance. The balance between text, images, and space makes the poster easy to read and visually appealing, ensuring that the important details are clear without overwhelming the viewer.
